Dear Applicant:

We have considered your application for tax-exempt status under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code.

The evidence reveals that you were incorporated on [REDACTED] as a domestic nonstock corporation in the State of [REDACTED].

The purposes for which the corporation is formed are as follows:

The ownership and operation of a private aircraft and other activities in connection thereto as permitted by the statutes of the State of [REDACTED].

Your activities consist of maintaining and operating a noncommercial airplane and ancillary equipment for business and personal use by its Incorporations. Membership in the organization shall be limited to [REDACTED].

Each member is required to his share of the original payment for the [REDACTED] aircraft, $[REDACTED] a month for fixed expenses and $[REDACTED] per hour for each hour the member uses the plane.

Section 501(c)(3) of the Code provides, in part, for the exemption from Federal income tax of organizations organized and operated exclusively for charitable, religious, scientific or educational purposes, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual.

In order to qualify under IRC 501(c)(3), an organization must be both "organized" and "operated" exclusively for one or more purposes specified in that section. If the organization fails to meet either the organizational test or the operational test, it is not exempt. (Regs. 1.501(c)(3)-1(a)(1)). The organizational test relates to the rules for governing an organization and the purposes stated in its articles of organization. The operational test relates to the organization's activities.

Section 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(1)(ii) of the Regulations provides, in part, that an organization is not organized or operated exclusively for one or more of the purposes mentioned in section 501(c)(3) of the Code unless it serves a public rather than a private interest. An organization may not be exempt if it is operated for the benefit of private individuals.

Section 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(2) of the Regulations provides that the term "charitable" includes relief of the poor and distressed, advancement of education and science and the promotion of social welfare designed to accomplish any of the above purposes.

Section 1.501(c)(3)-1(d)(1)(ii) of the Regulations states that an organization is not organized or operated exclusively for one or more exempt purposes unless it serves a public rather than a private interest. Thus, to meet the requirement of this subdivision, it is necessary for an organization to establish that it is not organized and operated for the benefit of private interests such as designated individuals, the creator or his family, shareholders of the organization, or persons controlled, directly or indirectly, by such private interests.

Section 1.501(c)(3)-1(b)(4) of the Regulations states that "an organization is not organized exclusively for one or more exempt purposes unless its assets are dedicated to an exempt purpose. An organization's assets will be considered to be dedicated to an exempt purpose, for example, if upon dissolution, such assets would be distributed in accordance with a provision in the organization's articles or by operation of law to be distributed for one or more exempt purposes, or to the Federal government, or to a State or local government, for a public purpose, or would be distributed by a court to another organization to be used in such manner as in the judgment of the court will best accomplish the general purposes for which the dissolved organization was organized. However, an organization does not meet the organizational test if its articles or the law of the State in which it was created provide that its assets would, upon dissolution, be distributed to its members or shareholders."

Based upon the evidence presented, the activity of providing a private aircraft to your members, you are operated for the benefit of private interests. In addition, the assets revert to the members upon dissolution which does not meet the requirements in section 1.501(c)(3)-1(b)(4) of the Income Tax Regulations.

Accordingly, we have determined that you are not organized and operated exclusively for purposes as defined in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code.

Consequently, it is held that your organization does not qualify for tax exempt status under section 501(c)(3) of the Code.

You are required to file a taxable return Form 1120 or 1041 with the District Director of Internal Revenue Service. Please send the return to the Internal Revenue Service, P.O. Box 1680, General Post Office, Brooklyn, NY 11202.

Contributions made to you are not deductible by the donors as charitable contributions as defined in section 170(c) of the Code.

If you do not agree with this determination you may protest in accordance with the enclosed instructions within 30 days.

Protests submitted which do not contain all the documentation stated in the instructions will be returned for completions.

If we do not hear from you within that time this determination will be considered final and the appropriate State Officials will be notified.

If you do not protest this proposed determination in a timely manner, it will be considered by the Internal Revenue Service as a failure to exhaust available administrative remedies. Section 7428(b)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code provides in part that "A declaratory judgment or decree under this section shall not be issued in any proceeding unless the Tax Court, the Claims Court, or the district court of the United States for the District of Columbia determines that the organization involved has exhausted administrative remedies available to it within the Internal Revenue Service."

Sincerely yours,

District Director
